HARDING PLEASED AT NAME OF "MAIN STREET PRESIDENT"

Humanity Is Revealed in Informal Talk With Newspapermen

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

Washington. — President Harding was in a soulful mood today on the arduous task of the presidency as viewed from within and without the White House.

Mr. Harding was discussing newspaper, editorial criticism and the executive's job. He had been discussing a public question and his reply was to apply phrases that the inquirer asked permission to quote the president.

There was a twinkle in Mr. Harding's eyes as he explained that a president really shouldn't be quoted so often, that sometimes a phrase or a sentence uttered in impromptu conversation wasn't as well polished as it might be, and that he was always grammatically perfect and he feared the wrath of some of the stylists who lately have been picking his utterances to the writer.

There was nothing plaintive about Mr. Harding's observation in this connection. He gave the impression that he rather enjoyed the freedom that an editorial writer had—saying just what he pleased. And Mr. Harding indulged briefly in reminiscences of the days when he too was an editorial writer and editor and that with the utmost abandon about publishing his utterances to the public.

Mayor Says There'll Be No Paving Done This Year; 1921 Shortage Is $15,000

Mayor T. E. Welsh and others handling the city government today announced that the city's deficit at the end of 1921 was only $14,924. Instead of $30,000 as had been estimated at the time the budget was made out in October. This means that half of the $30,000 sum appropriated in the 1922 budget to care for the 1921 deficit will be available for other purposes this year.

The announcement was made by the city clerk after two weeks of working to balance the books for 1921. It's just like finding $15,000," it was stated.

Economy Is Watchword

Mayor Welsh has reiterated his plea for economy in expenditures for 1922. "I don't care how much we save," he said, "I must be getting it back somehow."

SONGLESS CANARY, TALKLESS PARROT COST OWNER $50

Chicago.—When a parrot is guaranteed to sing, there is no excuse for their not living up to the expectation. Judge Eugene J. Burke ruled Wednesday. Mrs. Rose Goldstein told the judge that Morris Diaz, who had sold the birds to her, had given her a written guarantee that the parrot would sing and the canary would sing. The judge summoned the birds into court. They wouldn't perform. He fined Diaz $50 and costs.

Two Witnesses Held Against Will, Charge

San Francisco.—What the defense in the second Roscoe Arbuckle manslaughter trial proposed to do as a result of the testimony of two prosecution witnesses had been determined at the home of an attorney of the district attorney's office, was a major topic of conversation around the court room Thursday.

Miss Alice Blake, a participant in the party at the Hotel St. Francis here, at which Arbuckle is accused, of inflicting fatal injuries on Miss Virginia Rapp, testified Wednesday that two prosecution witnesses had been detained at the home of an attorney of the district attorney's office against their will.

FUTURE OF FREE GOVERNMENT NOW AT STAKE—REINSCH

WOMEN WIN FIGHT OF SALARY RAISE FOR COUNTY NURSE

AFTER LOSING BATTLE ONCE WOMEN BRING OUT HEAVY ARTILLERY.

4 IN NO VOTE

County Board Recedes When Women Attack Action on Salary.

Cash women of Rock county took up the political cudgel during the meeting of the county board Wednesday afternoon on the county nurse's salary and after a general exhibition of floor leadership they won hands down.

The issue came up with the supervisors when the appointment of the county nurse was considered as a special order of the business. A resolution was offered to re-elect Miss Anna Luetscher, Rock county's first rural nurse, and this passed without a negative vote. When the salary question was broached, then came the fight.

The county at the November session appropriated $2,800 in the county nurse fund, which would allow a yearly salary of $1,800 and traveling expenses.

Mrs. Green Leads

When the appointment resolution was passed there was an amendment tacked on that the salary of the nurse be $1,000 a month. The amendment lost.

Before the amendment had been seconded, Mrs. Walter Green, Evansville, secretary Rock county board of health, sought to be recognized by Chairman B. D. McGowan. When balked from speaking, the fire of the Evansville woman was aroused.

Chairman McGowan conferred to explain that the women present would be heard at the proper time but the women insisted on being heard right then and there before the vote was taken out but they came back strong.

"I am humbled and humiliated by this procedure," flared up Mrs. Green with a great deal of fire. "We have a county nurse. She won't work for that salary."

"Of course I can understand the position of the board chairman," Mrs. Green said. "He has been against the county nurse and never wanted it. I regret that we have not had full harmony with the county board committee for just about anything we have done for promoting county health has been hampered by your chairman and one other."

WOMEN FOUGHT FOR HER BEFORE ROCK CO. BOARD

NAMES PLATFORM

Imperialism Talk Termed "Shameless Propaganda" by New Cabinet Head.

By Associated Press.

Paris.—"Respect for the treaties that fixed the peace terms," is the platform Premier Poincaré decided upon to present for his cabinet before the chamber of deputies Thursday afternoon. The declaration blames "shameless propaganda" for the picture drawn abroad of France "tainted with a sort of imperialistic madness."

"We insist that the conditions of the Cannes protocol be accepted or rejected by the delegates prior to any discussion so that none of the dramatic gestures of the press can be debated, even indirectly. Unless we have precise guarantees on this point we shall be compelled to retain our independence."

"We do not seek aid."

"We would be very happy if a pact destined to consolidate the peace could soon be signed between England and France."

"We insist that the conditions of the Cannes protocol be accepted or rejected by the delegates prior to any discussion so that none of the dramatic gestures of the press can be debated, even indirectly. Unless we have precise guarantees on this point we shall be compelled to retain our independence."

"We do not need aid. We seek to maintain the strongest and most friendly relations with all the peoples who fought on our side for the rights of humanity, and especially with the United States, a partner in the common victory and who has just given us at the Washington conference such striking proofs of her noble sentiments."

The declaration as to reparations says:

"We ask nothing but observance of the treaties which the parliament enacted. We ask nothing but payment of what is due us."

The statement alludes to the League of Nations as follows:

"France will make it a point of honor to take the most active participation in the League of Nations. The results already obtained enable one to measure the service the world may expect from it."

The other, by Secretary Garrison, expresses in eventual unification of the Chinese roads under Chinese control.

Both were adopted substantially in the form presented Wednesday, although a few minor changes were made.

The Lansing-Tsai agreement, by the terms of which, according to the Japanese contention, the United States recognized China's railway interests, has been scrapped in the view of some arms conference delegates, by the action Wednesday of the Far Eastern committee in adopting the open door resolution.

He men and affairs. But he warned his hearers good naturedly that some day if any of them happened to be elected to the presidential office they would find it a vastly different job writing and saying things immediately sent broadcast to the world for the inspection and minute criticism of hundreds of millions of people and writing newspapers and radio for the consumption of a small community like Marion, Ohio.

No Impatience.
Responsibility makes a difference. And Mr. Harding shows it. He exhibited no impatience with his critics but he used the occasion with splendid tact to take a fling at some of the writers who have been characterizing him as the "Main Street President" with a crude literary style. Mr. Harding isn't particularly displeased with the references to "Main Street" if he were to disclose his true feelings it would appear that Mr. Harding thinks it a virtue for the American people occasionally to select some one for the presidency who knows the simplicity and matter-of-fact problems of the common people of the United States.

Burdens of the President.
But there was just a touch of pathos in the president's observations on his critics. He gave the impression of a man overwhelmed by the awful responsibilities of this era of economic reconstruction, a man torn by the conflicting emotions of an agriculturist and a manufacturer. East inside the republican party, a man who was struggling to make headway against almost insurmountable obstacles in the way of government reconstruction and with such a burden on his shoulders he was not a little hurt that the critics should spend their time worrying about impromptu remarks made by the president in conversation with reporters and later sent broadcast as the matured and deliberate utterances of a nation's chief executive.

Inside the White House.
In this respect Mr. Harding is not unlike Woodrow Wilson, who suffered bitter criticism from newspapers because of certain twists of his literary style. Mr. Wilson used to think there were bigger things for the chief executive to do than his style of expression. Mr. Harding himself has found that looking at the president from inside the White House dwarfs in importance some of the criticisms which are made about a nation's executive and that while he is the last person in the world to be sensitive about honest criticism, he wonders if the little carping innuendoes are necessary for the successful working of a democracy.

No Quotations.
The president's little talk would have made much more interesting reading than his first remarks for which permission to quote was sought. But here, too, Mr. Harding took refuge in a self-imposed modesty which insists that a president should be quoted on things really worth while, things carefully thought out and maturely considered and that the outside world should not get from the newspapers the impression of a loquacious executive with a scintillating style just because alert reporters are ready to take down everything he may say in his waking hours.

$12,256,756, TAX ON STATE INCOMES

Personal Property Offset Expected to Equal More Than 50 Percent.

Madison.—The tax levy against incomes of Wisconsin individuals and corporations amounted to $12,256,756, of which $7,152,190 was against corporations and $5,104,566 against individuals, according to an announcement of Carol Atwood, tax commission.

The personal property offset against income taxes, not yet available, is expected to equal more than 50 percent of the tax so that cash collections will probably be less than $6,000,000, according to the commission.

In Urban Tax.
Mr. Atwood, in a statement, says "the income tax in the main is a city tax where wealth and large business is concentrated. Could the tax derived from the large manufacturing establishments in the rural districts immediately adjoining our large cities be eliminated from the amount credited to towns, it would serve to corroborate the statement that the income tax is essentially an urban and not a rural tax."

There has been a steady increase in the amount of the income tax levy from $3,182,883 in 1917 to $12,256,756 in 1931. The individual income tax has regularly been less than one-half of the total. An increase from $4,112,979 in 1920 to $5,104,566 in 1931, is shown in the individual income tax returns.

Number Increases.
This recent increase in the individual income tax levy is due to a combination of circumstances and in part may be accounted for by the fact that the number of individuals subject to assessment has materially increased, that during 1931 and 1932 there was an unusual increase in salaries and wages and an unusual number of profitable real estate transactions, and that local administration has become more efficient," Mr. Atwood said.

Of the $5,104,566 collected from incomes of 1931, $1,355,667 was derived from towns, $1,182,720 from villages and $2,566,179 from cities.

Total surplusage for 1930 amounted to $3,624,123 of which $1,691,276 was for the teachers' retirement fund and $1,932,847 for the soldiers' educational bonus.

OTTAWA WANTS AN ALL-CANADA ROUTE TO SEA

(By Associated Press.)
Ottawa, Ont.—While the project to provide a great international channel for ocean going ships by improving the St. Lawrence river to the Great Lakes is being studied by the governments of the United States and Canada, proponents of an alternative plan, the proposed Ottawa and Georgian bay canal, are seeking to enlist support for their "all-Canadian" waterway.

Advantages claimed for this route over the St. Lawrence which channel include the position entirely within Canadian territory, its immunity from the storm hazards of the lakes and the saving it offers in mileage.

Reporters ask a daily question of five persons. Here's what they say:

TODAY'S QUESTION:
What do you think of Senator Warren's charges that there were many accidents for airplanes and deaths in the army during the World war?

John W. Gross, Jr., ex-service man at attorney—"I think it is bunk. I don't believe there is evidence to substantiate the charges. It is merely backfire on military affairs."

John Kump, commander of the

Richard Ellis post of the American Legion, ex-serviceman—"It is all poppycock. There may have been men put to death, but they deserved it. We had men from all walks of life, criminals and others."

Dr. C. P. Clarke, ex-major in medical corps—"I don't believe it. The men knew what they were going into service for; they had the articles of war read to them many times; they knew the consequences. If there were any deaths of that nature, they were the carrying out of those articles."

W. C. Deane, ex-sergeant—"Warren may get one or two isolated cases, but he cannot get 107. There may be some truth to it, but I don't believe anyone ever went that far."

George DeHra, ex-captain—"No. Nothing to it. I traveled much in France and never had any evidence to show that such was the case."

WHY?

"WHY" is the key to romance, the pass-word to zest in work, the high sign of the joy of living. Knowing why a thing is done is a far greater incentive to doing a thing well than merely knowing how it is done.

Charles Pugsley, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, says one big reason why so many boys leave the farm is because they are not taught the "why" as well as the "how" of raising crops. On the farm or in the store, once the creative instinct is enlisted, the romance of work is born.

Those who assist us in making our business successful are trained in the "why" as well as the "how" of store service.

HEADS OF STEWART LAND CO. INDICTED

Kansas Firm, Charged With Fraud in Wisconsin, in Receiver's Hands.

Four officers of the W. D. Stewart Land company have been indicted criminally and a receivership has been granted against the company and its subsidiaries according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. This information, just received here, affects a number of farmers in the vicinity of Janesville who purchased land from the organization. The indictment was returned in Kansas City as was the receivership. It states that the company carries with it an indictment against the filing of a new judgment against the Stewart company or any of its subsidiaries. The officers indicted, charged with a "scheme to defraud," are W. D. Stewart, president, and the general manager, treasurer and secretary.

May End Wisconsin Case
Last February, a judgment of $58,000 was granted against Armstrong, Lima and Judge George Grim in Rock county circuit court against the Stewart Land company, the Stewart Farm Mortgage company and James E. Carlson and G. A. Carlson, defendants. It was immediately taken to the supreme court of Wisconsin and at the last term was laid over until the January, 1922, term. It is possible now that the receivership and indictment have been given, that an effort to dismiss the case will be attempted.

The attorneys for Mr. Armstrong were Henry P. Pierce, both lawyers made trips to Texas for first hand information. In one of these, Mr. Pierce joined with Kansas city attorneys in making a concession for recovery of the Stewart company for recovery of $200,000 paid by farmers for Texas land. These claims represented people in Wisconsin, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Nebraska and Missouri. Although keeping their cases separate, has through its attorneys made possible the procuring of the receivership and indictment against the Stewart company and the defendants in this city are attorneys for the defendants in the judgment action.

Stoughton Man Bought
Although judgments had been entered and the actions were pending, states Mr. Pierce, an agent of the Stewart company recently sold 40 acres of the Texas land to a Stoughton farmer for $10,000. The money was paid in cash. The receivership enjoins all officers and agents of the parent body, W. D. Stewart Farm Mortgage company, companies as to sell farmers and others interested lands in Texas, along the Rio Grande, which they are said to have pictured as capable of the most abundant crops when irrigated. They are to pump the water from the Rio Grande river and distribute it through concrete lined ditches. Where irrigated, the land was found to be extremely fertile and sales were made on the strength of show places. That after taking people, mostly aged, to the territory in fine trains at nominal fees, they sold land and was not under irrigation. They lost their life-savings of $8,000 and above. The price for the land was $200 an acre, land which it is claimed was not worth more than $25.

According to Mr. Pierce, efforts of the "victims" to organize to take action for refund or justice were stopped by action of the land company agents. It was not until the attorneys came to their offices, he says, that these tactics were halted.

Judge Grim's Decision
Judge Grim, in his findings last year, said:

"They grossly misrepresented the value of the land and the profits to be derived therefrom; they showed him a splendid irrigation system and falsely represented it to be the system which would irrigate the land; they desired him to purchase; they falsely represented the land as being all irrigable and level and ingeniously induced him not to investigate; they falsely represented the land to be bounded by a highway on all sides, which would make it more saleable in small tracts, and allowed him neither time nor opportunity to discover the truth before signing the contract; they falsely represented that there were many ready to rent such a place and induced him subsequently to expand upwards of $10,000 to have the land cleared; and they literally rushed him into signing a contract of purchase without time or opportunity for proper investigation."

BORUZAK TO CONTINUE BUSINESS WITH NEW DEPARTMENT STORE

The Janesville Department store will succeed the Janesville Dry Goods company. This will be the trade name of the business which has been bought by J. L. Boruzak. He purchased the assets of the Janesville Dry Goods company and is now in the hands of the original owners who will conduct the business in the future. The Janesville Dry Goods company suffered severe losses because of the slump in business in 1921 and the consequent marking down in prices of merchandise from cost to present values. Mr. Boruzak advises that the business will continue without interruption.

16 MORE ENROLL IN SCHOOLS IN WEEK

Mothers!

Give Your Little Girl a Chance to Become an Artist

Now, for the first time, your child can have full control of the piano! Now she can learn to play properly, artistically, from the very start.

No longer need she play wrongly, without expression—because she cannot reach the pedal. Then try to learn over—when perhaps it is too late.

Now She Can Pedal

For a remarkable new invention brings the pedal within her reach! The great handicap to artistic playing has been removed. Tone color, the secret of piano charm, is hers.

"The pedal is the soul of the piano," say the great musical authorities. Its importance can hardly be over-emphasized. Without pedaling, no one can play correctly.

Yet there is only one piano with pedals a child can reach! It is the superb Lyon & Healy Piano, equipped with the Junior Unfolding Two-Level Pedal.

Highest Endorsements

High authorities endorse this improvement enthusiastically. "I wish I could be a boy again to be able to make use of the Junior Pedal," says Rudolph Ganz. "It should be used universally where children are concerned," Percy Grainger.

Fortunately great invention obtainable in an instrument of supreme quality. The Lyon & Healy Piano "is beneath the fingers." Its exquisite tone and rare beauty give it enduring charm. Its moderate price makes it an outstanding value. And the development of the Junior Pedal makes it the first complete piano—complete for musicians of every age!

See It Demonstrated

Come in today to see this revolutionary improvement. Let us demonstrate it for you. No obligation. Or phone or write for free illustrated folder.

Wisconsin Line to Enlarge
Exchange Here in Spring
—Plan Cafeteria.

Construction of a $25,000 addition to the local exchange of the Wisconsin telephone company, corner of East Milwaukee and North Division streets, will be undertaken this year, according to announcement of company officials, Thursday. Plans have been completed and contracts for work are now being sought so that the work may begin early this spring, probably in March.

Enlargement of the exchange has been made necessary following the purchase of the Wisconsin telephone company by the Wisconsin system, and the consolidation of the two lines. More space is needed for the business office, operating room, storage of material and for all the other departments of the exchange and all of these enlargements will be provided for in the new addition. When the present building was erected, it was designed to permit of just such an addition to give every department a room for extension.

The new addition will be of brick, two stories and basement, 32 by 41 feet, of the same style of architecture and construction as the present building.

Provision for a cafeteria for girl employees is one of the new features planned, along with enlargement of the present restaurant on the second floor. These rooms will be made attractive for recreation.

The company secured a permit, Thursday, from George W. Slightman, acting building inspector.

To Vote Feb. 6 on 1923 City for Pin Meet

By DR. S. F. RICHARDS

Chairman, 1923 State Bowling Meet

The intent of this article is to give the citizens of Janesville an idea of our chances of landing the 1923 state bowling tournament.

Before going further, let me say our work is not a means done. The very generous manner in which our people responded to the request for entries is highly commendable and they have the sincere thanks of those who are interested in the city of Madison and the Wisconsin Bowling Association. However, a large entry of teams from Janesville will not alone suffice to win the trophy for us. For our support given Madison this year we have shown the state just how much in earnest we are, but on the other hand we must convince the 21 men on the executive committee of the stimulus it will be to ten-pins in this part of the state, and that our increased interest in the game will mean increased support from here in all future tournaments.

These are but a few of the things that will be brought up and discussed at the annual meeting in Madison, Feb. 6.

I feel we have an even chance with Green Bay in this matter and it is remarkable that we should have such a chance when we consider that Green Bay started her drive for the 1923 tournament at last year's meeting by asking for the meeting day for her bowlers. This is the third consecutive year she has done this.

Our concerted efforts "date" back less than a month. That we have an even chance with Green Bay is indeed remarkable.

If sincerity, honest effort, wholeheartedness and straight-forwardness should appeal will have any effect on these men, we will get their votes, because that is just what I am anxious to give them in the meeting Feb. 6.

I don't want the people of Janesville to think that we are sure of this tournament and that they be disappointed if Green Bay wins.

We are not sure of it by any means, but are going to use every honest effort to get it, and should we fail, we will try that much harder the next year, with the advantage of having the inside track.

We must have further support—there are a few incidental expenses which will have to be met. A committee is out to raise $100 which will cover these necessary expenses and which will materially add to our chances of getting the meeting. I appeal to you to do them in the easiest way.

Come to Madison Feb. 2, whether you bowl or not. Let's have a big turnout of Janesville people. The bigger the crowd the better the chances. Let's make it a big parade.

PLAN TO EDUCATE PUBLIC IN MOUTH HYGIENE AND DIET

Chicago—Preventive dentistry and mouth hygiene were the underlying themes of the annual meeting and clinic of the National Dental Association, which opened here Tuesday.

Dr. H. H. Drew has resigned as sales manager of the Bara Equipment company.

The eighth grade of the public school was defeated by the Milton eighth grade Wednesday night, 11 to 2.

Norman Clarke, who has been ill, is able to be out.

Mrs. Emil Wilkins and son, Stoughton, are visiting Mrs. Bertha Otto.

Mrs. Conrad Arkivik, Racine, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Edson Ogden.

Mayor J. J. Leary and City Attorney, George W. Blanchard, attended the funeral of the late Lawrence Deep yesterday morning in Madison.

The Rev. Father Harlin attended the funeral of his cousin, Father Collins, at Burlington, Tuesday.

RAWLINGS MAY FACE LANDIS IRON HAND

Charles Cape, Rockford, chairman of the International Kiwanis committee on music and several members of the American Legion, Madison, spoke Thursday.

Fourteen guests were present. Membership attendance was 90 per cent. Amos Rohrborn and Charles Chase were remembered.

FAMILY TOOTHBRUSH IS NO LONGER HUNG BY KITCHEN SINK

Along with the family toothbrush in Rock county.

So reported Miss Anna Luetscher, county visiting nurse, in making her annual report before the board of supervisors Wednesday afternoon.

Every school in Rock county has been visited by the county nurse and every child attending the rural public schools has been weighed and measured. Of 2182 children examined, 1275 had some physical defects and needed immediate medical attention.

Out of 3219 children, 10 percent or 422 were below normal weight and 183 above weight. This is a marked decrease from 1920 because of the increase of milk and milk products among country children.

The defective children are as follows: tooth, 511; tonsil defects, 522; eyes, 22; vision, 277; hearing, 422; speech, 40; skin, 25; neck and chest, 14; and other defects, 73.

The county nurse gave 36 demonstrations on public health.

There were 127 home visits and in the next year the county nurse declared more attention was to be paid to the homes and children under school age.

"There is coming a time when good public health will be taught in your schools the same as arithmetic," stated Miss Luetscher with which the county nurse deals with from helping check epidemics to finding homes for orphans were listed in the report.

The statement was made before the board of supervisors, and the county nurse was applauded on finishing reading the report, which was then ordered filed.

BUSINESS GOOD IN WEST, SAYS KERCH

No Depression in California
Says City Engineer,
Home from Trip.

The west has scarcely felt the effects of the general business and industrial depression, according to City Engineer C. V. Kerch who returned from a trip to California last week. He was in the state capital to visit his aged father, J. H. Kerch, Santa Anna.

"Business seemed to be good in all the cities I visited," said Mr. Kerch. "In Los Angeles, San Diego and Santa Anna, the building permits for 1921 were greatly in excess of 1920."

"California is now in the midst of its rainy season. In one week while I was there they had 11 inches of rainfall while they got under 9 inches a normal rainfall for the entire year. The rain was welcomed, especially at San Diego where it filled reservoirs with nine million gallons of water, enough to supply the city water for several years."

Mr. Kerch visited several former Janesville residents now in California, among them Cash Seales who is now running a garage in Norwalk. He was superintendent at the Janesville Fence & Post company here a number of years ago. In Los Angeles he met James McLean, former alderman here, who is now in the city of Los Angeles. He visited his older brother, Dr. Kent Kerch, a dentist at San Diego for a few days and on his way home stopped short time with his younger brother, Walter Kerch, civil engineer at Granite City, Mo.

Returning to Janesville, he spent Tuesday at the National Good Roads show at Chicago. Mr. Kerch, who had been visiting several days at Granite City met him there and returned home with him.

Tobacco Price
Conspiracy, Is
Charge of U. S.

Washington—Three of the principal tobacco manufacturing companies—the American Tobacco company, The F. Lorillard and Liggett and Meyers Tobacco company, were charged with engaging in conspiracies to keep up tobacco prices in a report transmitted Wednesday by the federal trade commission.

The three companies, the commission declared in giving the results of an investigation ordered under a resolution by Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, were formerly part of the "tobacco trust" dissolved by the supreme court.

The R. J. Reynolds company, the report said, was not a part to the alleged conspiracy and was commended for its opposition. The commission promised disclosure where the evidence disclosed there had been violations of law.

The Guarded Heights

By WADSWORTH CAMP

Thrown out of a job in his father's livery stable because of failure, George Morton becomes a horse wrangler for Old Planter, rich and arrogant. The youth falls in love with Sylvia Planter, and when she falls from her horse, he kisses her. This brings on a fight. Morton leaves, goes to Princeton and determines on a college education. He makes the football team, studies with Ed in the tennis department, and the aid of a tutor, George Bailey.

"I thought you'd quite forgotten us, George."

Nat and he want to kill the welcome in her voice.

"You're leaving Princeton very soon," Mrs. Alston said. "I'm glad you've come. Of course, it isn't to say good-bye."

He wondered if she didn't long for a parting to be broken only by occasional meetings in town. He wondered if she didn't fear for Betty. If there had been no Sylvia, he never would have come so far, never would have come to Betty. Bitter consideration held him on his course.

He feared that Mrs. Alston, in her snarling, envious manner, wouldn't give him an opportunity to speak to Betty.

"You don't understand," he said, desperately. "This thing that you say I've become is only veneer. It may have thickened, but it's still veneer. It hurt to say that more than anything else, for all along he had been afraid it was the truth."

"Underneath the veneer," he went on, "I'm the mucker, the stable boy if you like. If I were anything else I would have told you all this years ago, Betty! Betty!"

She drew further away. He thought her voice was frightened, not quite clear.

"Please! Don't say anything more now. I'll rather not help holding that slender hand tighter. She swayed away, whispering breathlessly:

"Let me go now!"

He opened his fingers, and she ran lightly, with a broken laugh, across the lawn away from him.

The moonlight was like the half light of a breathless chapel, and the

He couldn't help holding that slender hand tighter. She swayed away, whispering breathlessly:

alone. He was glad when they went and found Mr. Alston, who liked and admired him. When he left, there must come a chance. As he said good-night, indeed, Betty followed him to the hall, and he whispered, so that the couldn't hear:

"Betty, I've a confession. Won't you walk toward the gate with me? The colour entered her white face as she turned and called to her mother:

"I'll walk to the gate with George."

From the room he faced a rustling, irritated acknowledgment.

But she came, throwing a transparent scarf over her tawny hair, and they were alone in the moonlight, and the scent of flowers, walking side by side across grass, beneath the heavy branches of trees.

"See here, Betty. I've no business to call you that—never have had. Without saying anything I've lied to you ever since I've been in Princeton. I've taken advantage of your friendship."

She paused. The thick leaves let through sufficient light to show him the bewilderment in her eyes. Her voice was a little frightened.

"You can't make me believe that. You're not the sort of man that does such things. I don't know what you're talking about."

"Thanks," he said, "but you're wrong and I can't go away without telling you just what I am."

"You're just—George Morton!" she said with a troubled smile.

He tried not to listen. He hurried on with this killing that appealed to him as necessary.

"Remember the day in Freshman year, or before, wasn't it, when you recognized Sylvia? Didn't she bid you? It was her dog. She had given him away—to me, because she had set him on me, and instead of biting he had licked my face. So she said to take him away because she could never bear to see him again."

Betty's bewilderment grew. She spoke gropingly.

"I guessed there had been something unusual real between you and the Planter. What difference does it make? Why do you tell me now? Anything as old as that makes no difference."

"But it does," he blurted out. "I know you too well now not to tell you."

"But you and Lambert are good friends. You dance with Sylvia."

And she, he said with a harsh laugh, "still calls me an impudent servant."

Betty started. She drew a little away.

"What? What are you talking about?"

He forced himself to a relentless description of his father and mother, of the livery stable, of the failure, of his acceptance of the privilege to be a paid by the week guardian on a horse of the beautiful Sylvia Planter. The only point he left obscure was the sentimental basis of his quarrel with her.

"I was impudent," he ended. "She called me an impudent servant, a stable boy, other pleasant names. She had me hired, or would have, if I hadn't been going away. Now you know how I've lied to you and what I am!"

He waited, arms half raised, as one awaits an inevitable blow. For a minute she continued to stare. Then she stepped nearer. Although he had suffered to win an opposite response, she did what he had feared Lambert Planter to do.

"No wonder Lambert admires you," she said, warmly. "To do so much from such a beginning! I knew at first you were different from—from us. You're not now, it's—"

She broke off, drawing away a little again. He struggled to keep his hands from her white, slender figure, from her half, yellow in the moonlight.

"Tinker Bob" Stories

by Carlyle H. Holcomb

JACK THINKS IT SAFER UNDER THE BED

The first one to enter the palace of the Forest King was Jack, the Rabbit. He was all excited. There were so many creatures waiting to see the King that Jack was afraid that they might want to see him before he could get inside. And he knew that if Reddy Fox ever caught him outside the King's palace he would never see the King again.

"My, I'm glad I got in here before Reddy saw me," said Jack.

"I thought I heard you singing," said Silky.

"You did hear me singing, and I was scared nearly to death when Sammy Squirrel told me that Reddy was in the crowd."

"Well, don't you worry. Red Fox will not harm you now. He will wait till the King has gone on his journey first, then look out," said Silky.

"We have all come to say good-bye to the King," said Jack.

"Seems to me you came rather early in the morning to say good-bye," Silky didn't know whether he was awake or not. He stretched himself and rubbed his eyes.

"I thought I heard you singing," said Silky.

"Well, of all things," said Silky, "what are you here for, Reddy?"

"Tight here Jack thought it was time for him to find a hiding place and under the King's bed he went, and he didn't come out till Tinker Bob called for him."

Red Fox stood up on his hind feet and looked as pretty as ever he could. Said he: "I came here to tell the King I would look after the forest creatures while he was gone, if he wanted me to."

Tinker Bob smiled at Red Fox and said, "I guess I had better let Major Pole Cat and Chief Porkey look after the Hunter, for you might be caught by the Hunter and then who would look after the folks?"

Now Red Fox hadn't thought of that. The thought that was in his mind was, how easy it would be for him to catch Jack, the Rabbit, and Mrs. Bob White if the King was away, and would let him watch over the forest. But when he thought about the Hunter catching him he began to feel sorry that he never thought of such wicked things.

"Rap, rap, rap," was heard. "Who comes there?" said the King, and the door opened.

Can you guess who was there?

BENNETT LEADS SCORING EFFORTS OF HOME OUTFIT

Represented by the best team that has been gathered here this season under the name of the Cardinals, Janesville sailed into the Harvard-Marvels in the latter half of a smashing game at the Coliseum 18th Wednesday night, emerging on the long end of a 32 to 25 score. The smashing tactics of the Cardinals, taking the ball from the Chicago stars by almost superhuman efforts and carrying it in mad races down the floor, led the sphere to Bennett who swished it through the meshes six times in the final period. The first half was the fastest of the local cage season. The teams surged up and down the floor and the crowd roared like mad.

Five Times Tied
Five times in the opening period the score was tied. The count ran 4-4, 6-6, 8-8, 10-10, 12-12 and 14-14. Janesville had to be content in the early session with long passes, while Bennett rode the line, carrying a series of lateral passes, leading the speedy interferences of Sachs and Kistner. Such continuing the slippery tactics that have characterized him as a sensational running guard.

Although the game was hard fought, it was remarkably free from fouls and the Harvard officials commented in admiration. The game was pitched against a team that was remarkably free from fouls. The star of the visitors was Bennett. With Bennett in the line, the Chicago Cardinals were the only team to score for the Illinois outfit in the latter period.

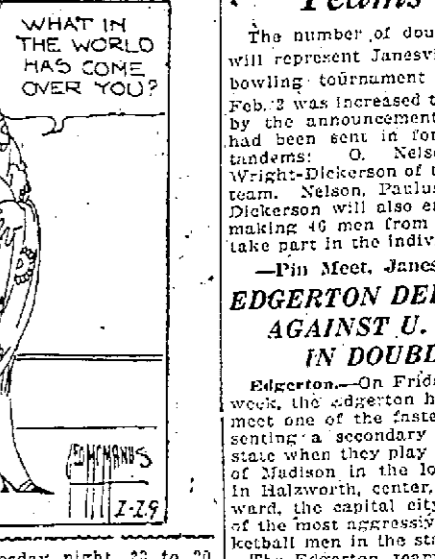

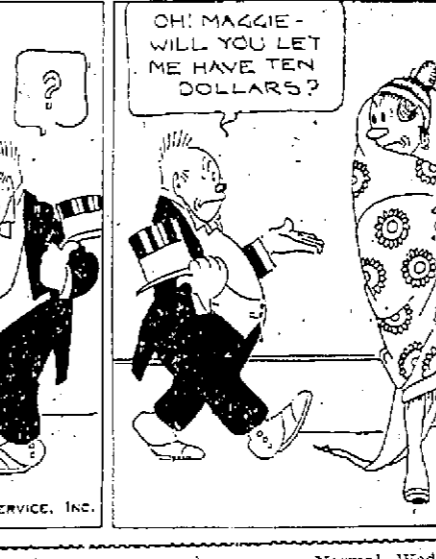

Frederick Good Center
Frederick, a Madison crack, filled the center position to perfection. Dipped against Gorgas, one of the smoothest pivot men in the game, he held his duty well. In addition, he showed every attribute of the center, combining in nice style the work of guard and forward. He ranked next to Bennett in scoring for home outfit.

Not the turn of the playing session, Harvard was in the lead, 18 to 25. With the return to play following the intermission, it was 12 minutes before the Cardinals were able to find the hoop.

In the first half, Bennett seemed not to be playing his usual unerring scoring game. In the latter stanza, he let loose and made them look in wonder. Six times he swished the ball through the iron ring, one of them a pretty and clean loop from half way down the floor.

2 More Tandem Teams to Meet

The number of doubles teams who will represent Janesville at the state bowling tournament at Madison on Feb. 2 was increased to 23 Wednesday by the announcement that entries had been sent in for the following tandems: O. Nelson-Paulus and Wright-Dickerson of the Arcade Alley team. Nelson, Paulus, Wright and Dickerson will also enter the singles, making 46 men from here who will take part in the individuals.

EDGERTON DEFENDS AGAINST U. W. HIGH IN DOUBLE HEADER

Edgerton.—On Friday night of this week, the Edgerton high quintet will meet one of the fastest teams representing a secondary school in the state when they play the University High of Madison in the local gymnasium. In Edgerton, center, and Stehr, forward, the capital city team has two of the most aggressive and alert basketball men in the state.

Call on Bowlers to Use Special

The chartering of a special train by the Janesville Bowling association for the return trip from the state tournament necessitates the guarantee of 125 fares. This was assumed by the board of directors. This action means that every bowler who goes to Madison on "Janesville day" must cooperate with the officials of the local association in coming back on that train. Inasmuch as it will be necessary for men who go to the meet to buy full fare tickets to Madison and then purchase half fares on the return after producing a certificate which will be given at the bowling alleys in Madison, the special train arrangement is the best possible accommodation. The Pin Knights can get considerable bowling will be done at night, and the train has been chartered to get the men back to Janesville that night, instead of laying over in the capital city until Friday morning.

FORWARD SCORES 88 POINTS IN ONE GAME

Muncie, Ind.—What is thought to be a record for individual scoring in basketball game was made by Jones, forward on the Fort Recovery, Ohio, high school team, who scored 88 points in a game against the St. Henry, Ohio Academy team at Fort Recovery, Wednesday night. Jones' team won 100 to 10.

By winning two games from the leading Merriks, the Cronin Dairy company went into fifth place in the city bowling league Wednesday night. They ousted the Lewis Union Suits who dropped three to the Gazette. There were no other changes.

Rolling one game of 910 and carried along by Richards' high of 215, the Shurtliff Ice Creams captured three from the Bake-Rites. By so doing they strengthened their hold on second and are running the Merriks a pretty race for first. The Pure Milk took a couple from the Nasser.

R. F. Bs. in Tough Game Wednesday

Meeting a team that played like clock-work, the Janesville R. F. Bs. met defeat before the American Legion at Fort Atkinson Wednesday night, 24 to 22. It was one of the fastest and roughest games of the year on the Fort floor.

A last effort by the Fort bunch gave them the victory in the final two minutes. Janesville was ahead when the Fort scored three wild throws.

For Janesville, Dawson and Sheridan, disqualified local high school players, starred. Capt. Hager was taken out on a referee's decision, up to that time having played his best game of the year. The Fort's captain was eliminated from play at the same time. The guarding of Paul and Manogue was a feature. Charley Dick turned his ankle and will be out of the game for several days.

McKUNE SWEEPS ICE FREE FROM SNOW

With the spirit that is making ice skating here the greatest sport in years, Street Commissioner Thomas McKune, started Thursday morning to clear the ice of snow. He sent the big street sweeper with a team of horses to both Gas House Pond and Monterey. The ice will thus be in shape again to skate Thursday afternoon and night.

Normal Wednesday night, 23 to 25.
